Employment Application

Gold Country Casino is a tribal business of the Tyme Maidu Tribe of the Berry Creek Rancheria (“Berry Creek”). Berry Creek is a federally recognized Native American tribe. As a Native American tribe, Berry Creek is a distinct, independent political community that retains its original natural rights in matters of self-governance.

As a separate sovereign entity, Berry Creek has the power to make its own laws. Therefore, most laws of the State of California, and many federal laws, regulating terms and conditions of employment do not apply to employees of Berry Creek or employees of the Casino. If you receive an offer of employment, you should not expect that the policies that govern your employment will necessarily be the same as they would be if you were employed by a non-tribal employer.

In addition, Native American tribes, as sovereign powers, possess sovereign immunity from lawsuit. This means that Berry Creek and the Casino cannot be sued in the courts of the State of California or in the United States federal courts. Nothing in this application or in any other aspect of employment is intended to waive that sovereign immunity.

If hired, all employees are required apply for a gaming license and pay a non-refundable License Fee. Approval for licensure by the Gaming Commission is a condition of employment.

Gold Country Casino is a tribal business of the Tyme Maidu Tribe of Berry Creek Rancheria. Nothing in this application is intended, or shall be interpreted, as waving sovereign immunity.
